Jade's party

My name is Jade.

It was my birthday on Sunday,
and I had a party.

But the party almost didn't happen!
I'll tell you why.

Dad made a shopping list.

twenty bread rolls
three packets of ham
ten bags of crisps
ten milk shakes
ten cans of lemonade
a packet of napkins and a packet of plates
a packet of balloons
a tape of party music
a big chocolate cake

Dave's my teenage brother.

Dad asked him to take me to Gateway on the bus

to get all the stuff for the party.

We got a trolley, and Dave looked at the list.

First we went to the place where they bake bread.

Dave picked up twenty rolls and put them in the trolley.

(I picked up a currant bun, and hid it under the rolls.)

Then I found the ham.
(Dave found the currant bun,
and told me to behave.)

Crisps ... milk shakes ...
lemonade ...

The trolley was filling up.

Party napkins, plates and a big packet of balloons.
Dave said he'd blow them up.

A tape - we got a good one by Steps.

And then the most important thing:
a chocolate cake (the biggest, with 'Happy Birthday' on top),

We went to the checkout to pay. A girl put all the stuff in plastic bags and gave them to Dave.

Then we raced along the pavement to the bus stop.
We made up party games on the way.

Dad started to unpack the shopping.

Out came ... a packet of stale fishcakes (past the sell-by date) ...

a can of hair spray ... a bunch of grapes ...

a jar of marmalade ... and a jumbo pack of nappies!

Dad's face went pale.

"For goodness' sake, Dave!" he said. "What have you got to say?"

Dave said, "We must have picked up the wrong shopping by mistake.

Plastic bags all look the same to me. I'll take the blame, Dad.

And I'll take it all back to Gateway on Monday."

Well, it was a bit of a shame.

I hate grapes, and we didn't need hair spray - or nappies!

But it was okay in the end.

We had the party at Pizza Hut instead.

We had pizza, and chips, and pop.

And then, out came a man with a birthday cake!

A chocolate one, with seven sparklers on it. For me!
