

Lesson 11

LC: Can I re-read the story to find evidence of clues in the text?

Now that you have read through the whole story in chunks, I would like you to re-read the story and look for clues in the first half of the text that hint at what we find out towards the end of the story. This is called 'foreshadowing'

Foreshadowing is a literary device in which a writer gives an advance hint of what is to come later in the story. Foreshadowing often appears at the beginning of a story, or a chapter, and it helps the reader develop expectations about the upcoming events.

Make a note (in your pink books or digitally) of any clues that you see as you read through that hint at the plot twist we discover at the end.
