Dear Alien,

When my mum brought the washing in yesterday, she noticed that a few pairs of underpants were missing. Granny's spotted bloomers had vanished and so had Grandpa's woolly long johns. This has made them very sad because they really miss their favourite underpants.

Did you, and some of your alien friends, take the underpants? Do you always help yourself to things you like? I think it is very wrong to take things without asking. I am hoping that you will think about how the owners feel.

I am happy to collect the underpants that my family no longer need and give them to you. You can visit to collect them regularly so that you never need to take them without asking again. Mum says you can visit next week. Remember to bring a big bag for the underpants!

I am excited about meeting you.
Please reply soon.
